A Caledonia student with a STUDY must

- be in a position to graduate;
- be enrolled in at least five academic courses in the school year (with three in the semester of the study);
- have good standing in the school with respect to achievement, attendance, diligence, and conduct;
- be able to work independently and abide by Library rules;
- attend daily with work to do; and
- remain in the Library for the entire study block.

Granting of the study block also depends on there being space available in the Library.

Administration retains the right to revoke the study if the student does not fulfill her or his responsibilities. In that case, the student may be granted an “off-campus block”, which means that the student would not be allowed on school grounds during the period.

The study may also be revoked if the student withdraws from one of the academic courses on which the application is based.

The number of courses in a student’s academic load is a factor with respect to Awards and Scholarships.

By signing below, the student and parent indicate that they have read the above-mentioned conditions of the contract and agree to abide by those conditions.
